

TIBURON · CALIFORNIA

The House of the Four Horizons

One of one. Rare architectural significance, extraordinary scale, and a true beachfront setting.
TiburonModernBeachHouse.com

stephanie
LAMARRE
real estate intelligence

Rarely does a property combine architectural significance, extraordinary scale, and a true beachfront setting so effortlessly.

Set directly on the San Francisco Bay in Tiburon, La Casa Dei Quattro Orizzonti is a 6,721± sq. ft., five-bedroom, five-bath modern estate offering exceptional privacy and seamless single-level living – on 5.33 mostly level acres that flow directly to the white sand beach and the Bay.

Designed by noted Italian architect Andrea Ponsi and built ground-up by Red Horse Constructors, the residence draws inspiration from California mid-century modernism.

Conceived as four pavilions arranged around a serene interior garden courtyard, the home is defined by extraordinary scale, abundant natural light, strong architectural sight-lines, and expansive retracting walls of glass that create a continuous connection between indoors and out.

Featured in numerous architectural and design publications, and on the AIA home tour.

A dramatic central axis draws the eye from the entry, through the home, to the water.

The plan provides exceptional separation between grand-scale public living spaces, the private primary wing, guest accommodations, and functional spaces including a three-car garage.

An art collectors dream, the public areas incorporate extensive gallery space and art lighting while maintaining an open, light-filled environment for everyday living and entertaining. Distinctive details enhance the spaces throughout: copper accents, custom lighting, vaulted ceilings, and modern Italian cabinetry.

Expansive terraces and decks step gently toward the shoreline, creating multiple areas for outdoor living – where water activities, a built-in spa, and the beach beckon.

The eco-friendly home incorporates passive solar strategies, natural ventilation, photovoltaic solar, and environmentally conscious materials — ipe wood-slat ventilated exterior walls, copper roofing, and solar glass canopies.

Designed to maximize light while minimizing visual impact, the single-level structure follows the site's gentle slope toward the shoreline.

An orchard garden at the entry. A private Japanese garden adjoining the primary wing.
Linear flower and herb gardens. The native landscape along the Bay.

A singular Tiburon estate – an exceptional convergence of significant architecture, sustainable design, single-level living, and an intimate connection to the San Francisco Bay.

Twenty minutes to San Francisco.

PRESENTED BY

Stephanie Lamarre

415.806.3176 | stephanie@stephanielamarre.com
stephanielamarre.com
Lic. #01840604

TIBURONMODERNBEACHHOUSE.COM

Golden Gate | Sotheby's INTERNATIONAL REALTY