

Ten Things Sellers Will Miss Most

5726 SW Spokane St | West Seattle

After 50 years in this beloved home, here are just a few things we know were most cherished!

The views never got old - Watching Puget Sound and the Olympics from the house, especially at sunset, was one of the great joys of living here. The light, the water, the mountains and the changing sky are so special.

The feeling you get when you walk in the front door - There's something immediately welcoming and comforting about coming home here. From the covered entry to the warm wood details and hardwood floors, the house has a character that feels instantly familiar.

Massive windows and the natural light - A great room filled with light, and the connection to the beauty outside is ever-present. Even on gray days, the house feels uplifting.

The cozy mid-century feel - This home has a wonderful personality. The built-ins, fireplaces, hardwood floors and architectural details give it warmth, charm and a timeless sense of home.

Quiet mornings in the breakfast nook - Looking out onto the backyard and gardens from the breakfast nook feels like such a peaceful way to begin the day.

Time spent in the backyard - The yard is a true gift — private, spacious, and full of possibilities. It's easy to imagine time spent gardening, relaxing, entertaining and simply enjoying being at home. There are wonderful garden spaces to explore throughout the yard.

The fireplaces on chilly days - There's something especially comforting about a wood-burning fireplace and having two of them gives the home a cozy feel throughout the seasons.

The rec room and extra space to spread out - This has always been a fun and flexible part of the home — a place to gather, relax, work on projects or simply enjoy extra space.

The garage flexibility - The two-car garage has clearly offered wonderful utility over the years, with one side serving as workshop space for projects and hobbies.

Being so close to everything Alki has to offer - Just moments from the beach, Schmitz Park, great restaurants, and Met Market, this location has made it easy to live in one of the most beloved West Seattle neighborhoods.
