Discover The Mountain's Finest

European Craftsmanship and Design | A Luxury Mountain Home in Big Sky, Montana

European Craftsmanship in Big Sky

LHM Mountain Homes — where Scandinavian mountain-building tradition meets contemporary European interior design and handcrafted precision.

Each structural element: walls, beams, and joinery was engineered and built by hand in Europe, then reassembled on-site in Montana with uncompromising accuracy, uniting Norwegian craftsmanship with the natural rhythm of the Big Sky mountain landscape.

Set within the alpine landscape of Big Sky's private Spanish Peaks Mountain Club, the house represents the essence of refined mountain living — combining Scandinavian craftsmanship, natural materials, and contemporary interior design.

Architecture Without Imitation

The exterior reveals structure, depth, and light — handcrafted timber, natural Norwegian stone, and expansive European windows in balanced composition.

The Discipline of Detail

Created as a complete living environment, the home is fully furnished and finished, with every element thoughtfully designed and in place for your arrival.

Kitchen & Dining

Precision craftsmanship is felt in every movement — the weight of a drawer, the softness of a hinge, the smooth texture of oak and stone, and the gentle glow within each detail.

Bedrooms

Four bedrooms continue the home's palette of natural materials — oak, linen, and soft lighting. Each space is designed for quiet retreat, where handcrafted details and mountain views define a sense of understated comfort.

Living & Lounge Spaces

The main living room opens toward the mountain horizon, its double-height volume filled with natural light and warm materials. Oak, leather, and stone define a space for calm conversation and quiet presence.

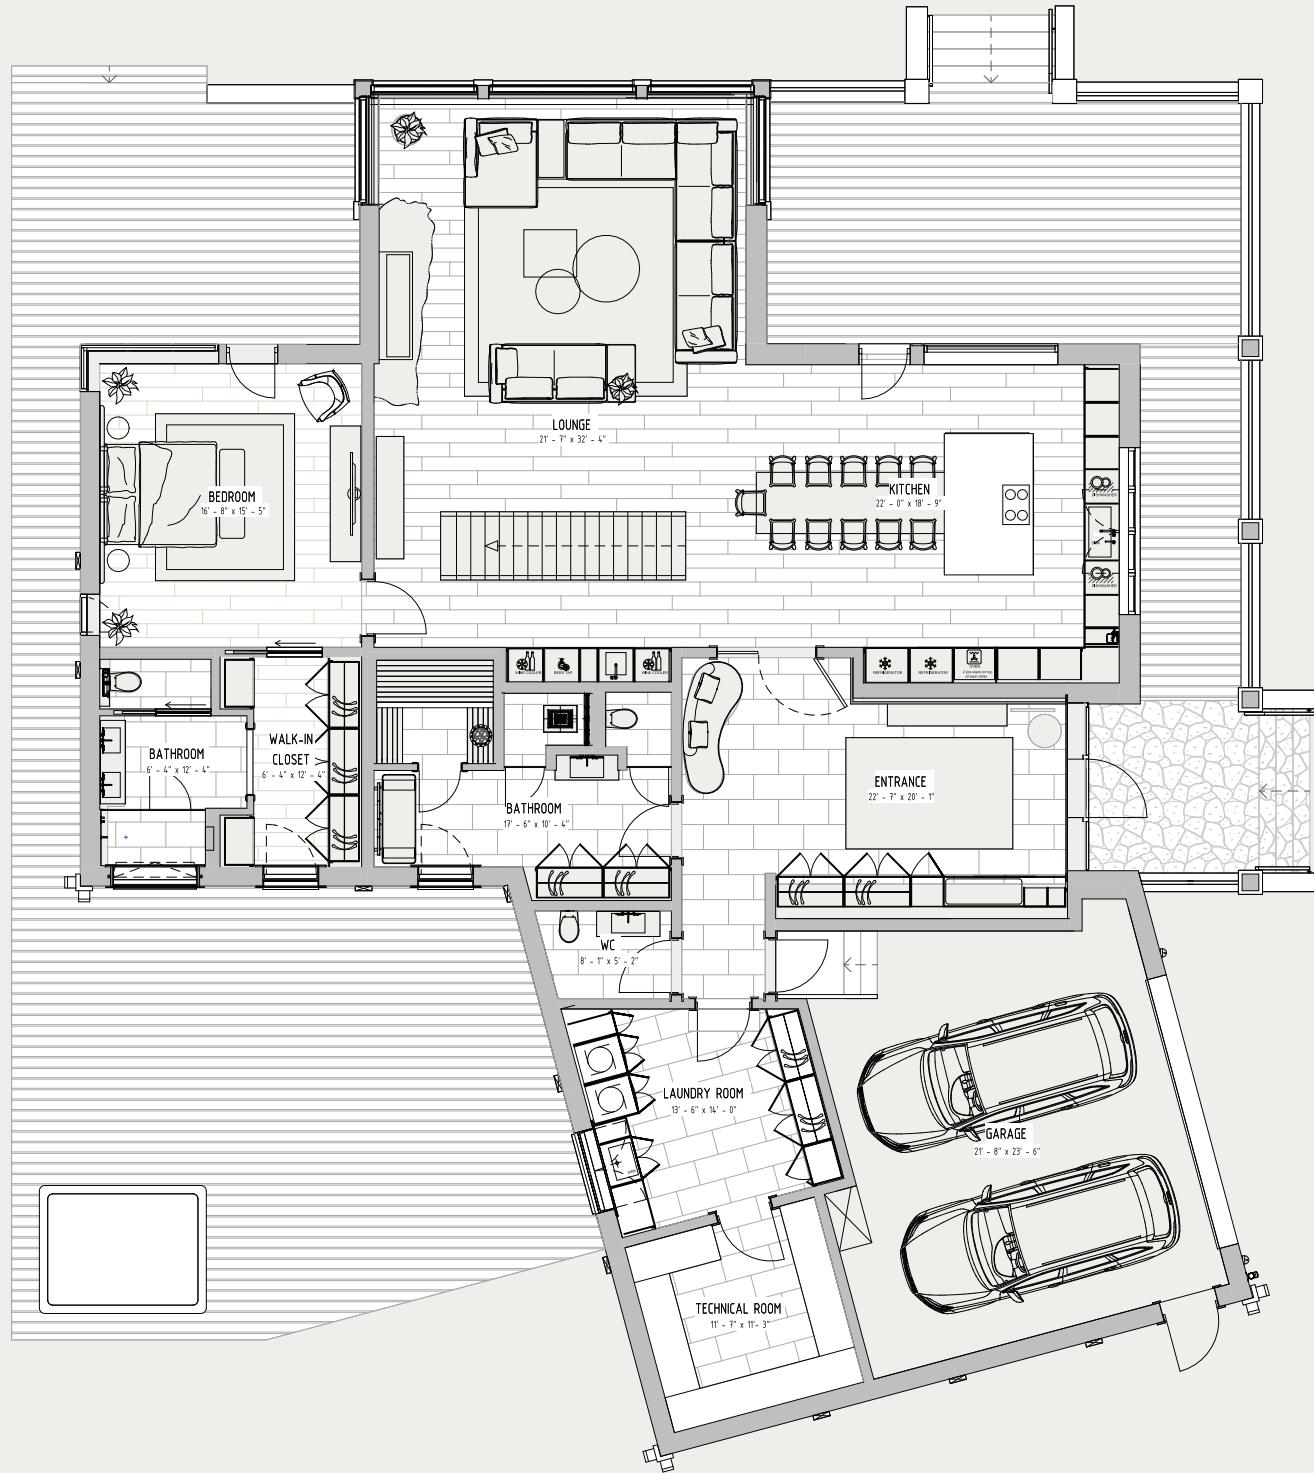

On the upper level, a welcoming bunk room continues the home's feeling of calm, with comfortable seating, a TV area, and a playful alcove.

Bathrooms

Six bathrooms reflect the same architectural discipline found throughout the house. Stone, oak, and ambient light define spaces where function and craftsmanship meet in quiet harmony.
