Home of the Day: Modern entertainer's space in Hollywood Hills

Telescoping doors blend indoor-outdoor space at this modern tri-level in Hollywood Hills West. (Daniel Dahler)

By NEAL J. LEITEREG

NOVEMBER 26, 2014, 8:42 AM

Reclaimed barn wood paneling and Jerusalem stone finishes lend a warming note to the vaulted, glass-lined interiors of this modern tri-level residence in Hollywood Hills West. The home is equipped for either small- or large-scale entertaining, with telescoping doors off of the master suite that open onto a private deck with wet bar, fireplace and separate fire pit. On the main level, an infinity pool and spa extend toward views of the downtown skyline.

Location: 1401 Queens Way, Los Angeles, 90069

Asking price: $6.995 million

Year built: 2011

Architects: Bowery Design Group

House size: 4,000 square feet, three bedrooms, five bathrooms

Lot size: 8,322 square feet

Features: Vaulted ceilings, walls of glass, reclaimed barn wood, oak flooring, Jeruselum stone, white tusk marble, open floor plan, chef's kitchen, dining room, living room with fireplace, outdoor pavilion with infinity pool and spa, entertainer's deck with cabana and wet bar, jetliner views

About the area: There were 101 homes sold in the 90069 ZIP Code over the last 90 days at a median sale price of $735,000, according to Redfin. The median list price for that area is $1.4 million.

Agent: Gia Casty, (310) 888-3709, and Sharona Alperin, (310) 888-3708, Sotheby's International Realty

To submit a candidate for Home of the Day, send high-resolution color photos via Dropbox.com, permission from the photographer to publish the images and a description of the house to neal.leitereg@latimes.com.

Copyright © 2015, Los Angeles Times