Blissful House

This sustainable Mandeville Canyon home is a stunning example of site-specific modernism by architect Jesse Bornstein AIA. The 4 bedroom, 3.5 bath main house, 1 bed 1 bath guest house, lap pool & spa, seamlessly connect to the lush natural surroundings. Timeless materials like hardwoods, polished concrete, and gypsum plaster blend with massive glass walls and retractable sliding doors to create a dramatic, livable space that interacts with the landscape and superb natural sunlight. The home features a gorgeous living room and dining space with 20-foot ceilings and a double-sided fireplace, a gourmet kitchen with a center island, and an outdoor dining area. The upper wing houses the primary suite with a fireplace, his/her closet, and a Zen bath behind Shoji glass panels, while the opposite wing has an open den and two spacious guest bedrooms with a full bath. Custom details include indirect recessed lighting, granite, flagstone, built-in speakers, seating, and a security system.
