Classic design, majestic proportions, bucolic setting and unrivaled amenities add up to a historical Beverly Hills compound of style, substance and impeccable pedigree. An address known for its legendary entertaining and industry cachet, the Harry Warner estate has hosted dignitaries of stage, screen and state since the late 1920s. The exceptionally private Tudor-style residence situated on a street-to-street lot of approximately 1.15 flat acres with three gated entries is surrounded by magnificent gardens, a lighted north-south tennis court, separate guest house, a grotto pool and spa, koi pond, fountains and an enormous lawn suitable for lavish gatherings as well as tranquil relaxation. At more than 12,000 square feet, the home's spectacular interior is detailed with French country flair and up-to-the-minute comforts. Rough-hewn beams, French imported wood floors, hand-carved woodwork, wide arched doorways, grand fireplaces, French doors create an atmosphere of welcoming grandeur. With seven resplendent bedroom suites, the home features a sumptuous screening room, billiards room, huge gym, professional country kitchen, library/lounge. From the cobblestone drive and porte-cochre to the stately trees and delightful brick courtyards, this is a historic legacy estate of rare scale and craftsmanship, character and beauty.
