

IF THESE WALLS COULD TALK...

Built in 1965 and used for decades as a parsonage for the nearby church, this brick ranch has spent its life as a welcoming hub for fellowship and community. Most recently used as a private residence, this well-maintained home lives large, with generous rooms and easy flow.

The characteristic easy-living ranch style flows easily from room to room. A wide archway in the living room marks the transition to a dining room with brick hearth wall, which segues seamlessly to the kitchen and the flexible bonus room.

A thoughtful expansion extended the kitchen, adding an island with seating, plenty of storage and prep space.

The flex room, with its own separate entrance, can be used as an office, a den, a mud room, a play room, or to house a home business.

The primary bedroom is set at the back of the home and connects to a full bath with a walk-in shower.

Just off the kitchen, the laundry room makes daily tasks easier with a utility sink, counter space and plenty of storage.

The stunning sunsets from the deep covered front porch provide year-round opportunities for marveling at North Carolina's natural beauty.

Energy-saving solar panels added in 2023, an encapsulated crawlspace, and double hung, low-e windows allow the house to operate efficiently. A two-car garage also includes a sizable workshop space, and extra turnaround parking allows easy access to the main road. The flat, sunny backyard is perfect for gardening, pet zoomies, and relaxed entertaining.

Just 10 minutes from downtown, find a coveted combination of privacy and proximity, solid construction and modern updates, and spaces for solitude and celebrations.
