Ground & Rooftop Levels

Small dimensions are required to verify the boundaries of the project with the contractor of future drawings, which will not be 100% from the dimensions that would be derived by using the description and definition of "line" as found in the Foundation (which generally only includes the interior dimensions of rooms) and excludes interior structural components. Refer to the Declaration included in the Condominium Documents for more of the full, detailed and accurate information on this matter. The actual room will typically be smaller than the project drawings by margins that exceed margin lines. All dimensions are approximate and may vary with actual construction, and floor plans and development plans are subject to change. All dimensions, furniture and other matters of detail, including, without limitation, items of finish and decoration, are conceptual only and are not necessarily included in each plan.
