

Meet Christine Christiansen

How one of the best real estate agents in Marin, combines passion for homes with strategy, integrity, and local insight.

Christine Christiansen works and sells in Marin County, but she also lives and breathes the Marin lifestyle.

The top Marin County real estate agent is also a longtime resident of San Rafael, where her parents live next door to her family's home. From sponsoring local concerts to supporting educational lecture series, Christiansen's community involvement also shows her dedication to residents — long after she helps them find their dream homes.

In addition, Christiansen's active, multi-generational lifestyle gives clients something that can't be bought or learned in seminars: an authentic understanding of what Marin clients want.

"I've lived the Marin lifestyle firsthand — from preschool drop-offs to hiking in China Camp with my son, to dinners with my parents," said Christiansen, who has practiced real estate for 22 years in the Marin area. "I know what matters to families because I'm part of one."

Christiansen, part of Compass Real Estate, takes clients through the most exceptional homes in San Rafael, Tiburon, Belvedere, Ross, and Kentfield with an inherent belief that it's her responsibility to help others understand the story of their future home.

MARIN'S STAR AGENT FOR A REASON

Christiansen isn't just a top-producing agent — she is the trusted advisor for San Franciscans who are ready to trade city stress for space, serenity, and sophistication.

Ranked consistently in the top 1% of agents in Marin County, Christiansen brings a rare blend of data-driven strategy and passion to her clients. She also brings a deep knowledge of Marin County, including neighborhoods, market cycles, and buyer behavior.

Her clients, including attorneys, entrepreneurs, and C-suite executives, choose Christiansen for her insight and her integrity.

"I'm not interested in selling just any house," she said. "I'm focused on finding the right house or positioning their property to achieve the strongest return."

A DATA-DRIVEN APPROACH WITH A HUMAN TOUCH

Christiansen's method for matching buyer preferences with homes across Marin County begins with a combination of data-driven strategy and seasoned intuition.

She studies absorption rates, neighborhood trends, and buyer demographics for an approach grounded in data. Then, she pairs that data with the insight that comes from more than two decades of experience.

"Real estate is never just numbers," she said. "People are buying into a lifestyle, a feeling, a future they can see themselves fitting into."

That emotional component is never lost on Christiansen, whose global upbringing shaped her approach to client relationships. Christiansen was born in San Francisco to Norwegian immigrants and spent her early childhood in Mill Valley. She then lived in Brazil, Afghanistan, and Egypt.

"This global perspective has shaped my unique approach to real estate in Marin, and also my communication style and ability to truly hear and understand what others need," Christiansen said.

DEEP ROOTS, REAL IMPACT

Christiansen's connection to Marin is personal. As a San Rafael resident with deep ties to the community, she has cultivated a life in Marin that supports her work.

Whether it's school districts, local hikes, or hidden gems, Christiansen speaks with an authenticity that fosters trust. Her influence also stretches beyond real estate.

With a passion for community involvement, Christiansen has brought cultural changemakers to Marin through the Dominican University Leadership Lecture Series. These live discussions, readings, and lectures focus on topics related to individual and organizational social change made possible by leadership across a wide range of industries — from arts and entertainment to science, politics, literature, pop culture, and more.

This year, she's also sponsoring the Summer Music Series at Andy's Local Market, a San Rafael community tradition that reflects the area's incredible bayside culture. More than 300 people typically attend each of the five weekly concerts for a memorable evening of live music, dancing, and enjoying delicious local food like oysters and barbecue.

"In real estate, it's not just about transactions. It's about belonging," Christiansen said.

WHERE FINDING A HOME MEETS PURPOSE

Christiansen defines success not by volume but by impact.

"When a client tells me, 'I felt seen. I felt protected. I'm so glad you were by my side,' that's everything," she said.

And with Kelly Erickson providing a hands-on, tailored client experience and Corinne Burt ensuring every transaction runs smoothly, Christiansen has built a trusted team around her brand — one that's centered on results but driven by relationships.

"Many have told me they feel like they're my only client," she said.

Whether you're exploring homes for sale in Marin or preparing to list a property with intention, Christiansen delivers a level of representation shaped by deep expertise and unwavering commitment to her clients. To her, home isn't just a financial asset or a roof over your head.

Home is the foundation for the next chapter of your life, and it deserves thoughtful strategy and personalized care.

If you're looking for experience, integrity, and results — Christine Christiansen delivers.
