

Prisons and Justice Initiative at Georgetown

Sue and Anthony Marguleas, founder of Amalfi Estates, recently hosted “Cocktails and Conversation” with Georgetown’s Marc Howard of the Prisons and Justice Initiative at their Palisades home for the school’s parents and alumni. Howard is the founding director of the Prisons and Justice Initiative and professor of government and law.

“Georgetown’s Prisons and Justice Initiative is the country’s leading university initiative dedicated to addressing the crisis of mass incarceration while recognizing the humanity in everyone,” according to information shared ahead of the event. “Through a diverse array of programs, PJI demonstrates the transformative power of education and opportunity for incarcerated and formerly incarcerated individuals.”
