"The best part of my job is the every day relationship I cultivate with my clients and the satisfaction I get from helping them achieve their real estate goals," says Sonja Huter, an award-winning luxury property sales specialist with Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices California Properties. A longtime resident of San Diego, Huter's been in the business for 20 years where she focuses on the exclusive San Diego coastal communities of Rancho Santa Fe, Del Mar, La Jolla and beyond.

Ranked in the top 1.5% of realtors nationwide and top 1% worldwide within Berkshire Hathaway's global network, she assists her clients in reaching their real estate goals through her fierce negotiation skills, strong work ethic and attention to detail. Named a Top Real Estate Producer by the San Diego Business Journal, Huter's unwavering professionalism combined with her commitment to success has earned her clients' trust, as well as their referrals. She always conducts her business with efficiency, keeping her client's best interest as her top priority.

When it comes to forecasting San Diego real estate market in 2023, Huter says, "We're seeing a stabilizing market where sellers will need to do proper pricing and buyers will be deciding on price offers carefully, while considering the location, condition, upgrades, age of the home and amenities." A wife and mother of two boys, her commitment to real estate is matched by her love of family and spending quality time with them.
